

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A scanning microscope having a light source that emits an illuminating light beam, for illumination of a sample. The illuminating light beam extends along an illumination beam path and can be guided over and/or through the sample using a beam deflection device. A mirror which can be introduced in guided fashion into the illumination beam path directs a manipulating light beam via the beam deflection device onto the sample.